Nationwide Midweek Bets

Just a minimal straight-out profit for June for the Midweek-Bets.

Nearly every time, they give you a big run for your money, which is great considering the low class of animal at midweeks

Elite-Combo Results

Couldn't get any real traction in June with Elite Combo but still a net profit situation.

17 bets for five winners @ $4.04. Two of the three 2.0% bets won which helped the bet-scale out-perform levels stakes.

Once again, more seconds and thirds than winners. (seven 2nds-3rds v five winners).

At any time this will swing back to the long-term situation of more winners than 2nds and thirds.

When that happens watch out for some big paydays.

Bet Scale Restructure

As explained in the June 10th newsletter, we are working to restructure the Elite-Combo bet scale. It is a must read to understand the following.

Newsletter June 10th 2026 – PDF Going/Distance analysis Elite Combo 2021-2026

This reform is taking time, but we want to get it right going into a new season soon.

One very strong example of why we are choosing to restructure the scale is the $50 bets (0.5%).

Coeur Volante was yet another example. On Saturday she won for us at $9.00 as a 0.5% bet.

This season, those bets listed as $50 have been winning at 33.3% @ 6.40 average winning odds.

Their net profit rate is + 113%.

It is obvious they deserve more respect. Watch this space.

Colour Coding

We still get queries in respect to the colour-coding provided for Melbourne races.

In October 2020 we introduced a colour coding system for Saturday Melbourne meetings. We highlight the definite winning chances in green and the serious dangers in blue.

The last race at Caulfield is a good example. We had the race down to two definite winning chances, Bazaball Rewarded and Winning Edge.

The two 'greens' had the race to themselves but of course we would have preferred the other way around.

It is simply a tool to give Elite punters extra insight as to our confidence for each rated race.
